Reactor Licensing Halted

Washington (UPI) -- The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, responding to a court ruling that it failed to adequately consider some atomic power risks, called a tempoary halt Friday to the licensing of new power reactors.

No licenses will be issued to build atomic reactors or to operate new ones at full power until after a full study of the environmental dangers of handling radioactive wastes and reprocessing spent fuel, the commission said.

"This will not bring a halt to nuclear power," said an NRC spokesman. "It will cause a delay of several months."

The spokesman said the environmental study should be completed by Sept. 30. He said the commission hopes to begin issuing licenses again some time between the first of October and the end of the

The agency's announcement followed a July 21 ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, which said the NRC did not give enough attention to those questions in issuing licenses to two plants in Vermont and

The commission said it would turn over to a licensing board the question of whether licenses for the two nuclear power stations specifically involved in the court opinion should be modified or Those plants are the Vermont Yankee Nuclear Power Corp. plant at Vernon, Vt., in operation since 1972, and the Consumer Power Co. Midland, Mich., station, which is under construction. Both will continue in their present status pending the license board's decision.

In the case of the Michigan plant, the NRC said, the license board also will consider a second issue which the Appeals Court said should be taken up when licenses are issued - whether energy conservation programs might be an alternative to building a nuclear power plant.

Although licenses for initial construction and full operation of new power plants are temporarily blocked, the commission said, some limited licenses for such things as loading fuel and low-power testing will "not necessarily" be held up. It also said construction permit amendments may be allowed.

Two new licenses for initial loading of nuclear fuel and low-power testing not to exceed 1% were issued Friday despite the new restrictions.

They went to the Baltimore Gas and Electric Co. for Unit 2 of the Calvert Cliff Nuclear Power Station at Lusby, Md., and to the Public Service Electric and Gas Co. for Unit 1 of its nuclear generating plant at Salem, N.J.

The commission said it will begin a public hearing this fall to develop new rules dealing with how it will consider the risks of fuel reprocessing and waste disposal in issuing future licenses.

The Energy Research and Development Administration also is working on an environmental impact statement on handling nuclear waste.

Adoption of a final commission rule could run into the next year.

Officials said pending operating license applications which could be affected by the delay include the Brunswick One plant at Southport, N.C., and Davis-Besse plant at Oak Harbor, Ohio.

They said pending construction permit decisions which could be affected include the River Bend plant at St. Francisville. La: the Washington Public Power Supply Systems Plant No. 4, at Richland, Wash.; the WPPS No. 3 and No. 5 reactors at Satsop, Wash.; the Wolf Creek plant at Burlington, Kan.; and the St. Lucie No. 2 plant at Fort Pierce, Fla. Exon Calls Special Session Pointless

Gov. J. James Exon Friday ruled out any personal move to call a special session of the Legislature to make spending cuts, because three-fourths of the budget is "almost untouchable

"I basically decided not to do anything at this time," the governor said in an interview, after he checked sentiment among about a dozen state senators.

"With few exceptions," Exon said, "they felt a special session would not accomplish anything.

Neligh Sen. John DeCamp has mailed his colleagues a petition calling for an extraordinary Unicameral meeting, to cut appropriations and maintain pre-Thursday tax rates, and to establish a legislative control mechanism in interim periods.

If 10 senators sign the petition, the secretary of state must poll all 49 members. If 25 agree, a special session will be called.

If DeCamp is successful in the petition effort, Exon said, "I would welcome that opportunity to have them here to correct what I consider excessive expenditures.

Or, Exon would use his governor's authority to convene the members himself if 25 senators were to advise him of an "advance commitment" to slash appropriations "drastically." Exon was skeptical about the needed result cutting "millions and millions.

A special session "would deteriorate into an exercise in futility" plus extra expense, which "I don't think we need," Exon said. "I don't believe a majority of the legislators are willing to make the reductions they would have to make" to restore lower tax rates.

To those who blame the administration's faulty revenue projections, the governor said, "That's not the problem." If the Legislature "made appropriations in the last (regular) session without anticipating any tax increase, it would be simple for them to correct that action' by regrouping in Lincoln.

But the 1976 Legislature "went way over the legislative fiscal staff recommendations," Exon said. And when senators adjourned, he cited a "foregone conclusion" and "general agreement the sales tax was going to have to go up, just on their appropriations.

A $48 million deficit was expected before tax rates were boosted this week. Those are record highs, he acknowledged. pointing out the spending record that caused them.

For example, Exon noted the personal property tax exemption primarily for business and ag inventories. The state reimburses counties for that local tax loss, at 50% this year for $40 million. Next year it goes to the 62.5%

Exon vetoed that exemption bill in 1972, but was overridden. Yet axing that exemption price tag now would nearly have resolved the current deficit crisis, he said.

"I suspect very little general understanding of what the picture is" in the budget, the governor said. The current fiscal year total is $460 million. Excluding reappropriations, encumbrances and capital construction, and not even counting deficit anpropriations pending, the need is $437 million.

Of that total, Exon explained, 51% or $221 million is for state aid items. Local tax relief appropriations could scarcely be touched, because counties, for example, are now approving their budgets with those amounts included. To juggle them would produce chaos.

Another 25% or $108.9 million is for postsecondary education, which Exon also put in the "untouchable" category unless senators were "willing to repeal

And fiddling with those two categories would actually result in a tax shift, requiring local property taxes to go up instead, the governor said.

Therefore, a special session scalpel would realistically only put 24% of the $106.57 million for state operations to the slash test, Exon said. That was reminiscet of a 1975 special session, which selectively pared agencies by 3% only to have much of the money restored

Reward Offer Cracks Silence

London (UPI) - The offer of a reward for information about a swimming pool murder has brought a "tremendous response" from the 1.000 witnesses who had previously remained silent about the killing, Scotland Yard said Friday.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said they have begun arresting youths for questioning in connection with the slaying of a 15-year-old Enrico Sidoli 37 days ago. 'We are now getting a tremendous response,' a police officer said. But the man in charge of the murder hunt said there was "some reticence" still. Enrico, a dark-haired, talkative boy with a neryous tic and a dream of being a disc jockey, was beaten severely by three youths in a crowded swimming pool, held under water until he lost consciousness and left for dead. Lifeguards hauled him from the pool. He died 11 days later.

Scotland Yard poured dozens of men into the hunt for Enrico's killers, but they met what one detective called "a wall of silence" from the estimated 800 to 1,000 witnesses who refused to help police find Emrico's killers.

The apparent breakthrough came with a London newspaper's offer of $1,880 reward for information leading to Enrico's killers. Police said that since the reward was publicized Wednesday, information has poured in. One telephone tip to a confidential answering-machine telephone set up weeks ago said one of the three suspected attackers had been seen in a local bar a few hours earlier.

"It is vital confirmation that this boy is still in the area," a police spokesman said.

Police believe they have fairly good descriptions of the other two youths involved in the attack on Eurico. A spokesman said "a number" of young people have been taken to the Kentish town district murder beadquarters for questioning.

Rights Of States 'Ignored;' Judge Blocks Oil Leasing

NEW YORK (AP) — Saying the rights of states had been "almost completely ignored," a federal judge on Friday temporarily blocked the federal government's plans to make its first sale of oil and natural gas leases in the Atlantic Ocean.

U.S. District Judge Jack Weinstein granted a preliminary injunction against the sale next Tuesday of the leases on $78,780 acres off the New Jersey coast. He acted in a sult brought against the Interior Department by New York State and others concerned about environmental impact of the planned sale.

The Interior Department appealed the decision to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Manhattan and was granted a hearing Monday morning. A department spokesman said it was possible the court could rule quickly enough to allow the sale to proceed on schedule.

At the sale, oil companies were to have submitted sealed bids for the right to search for oil in an area known as the Baltimore Canyon Trough, wich lies 47 to 92 miles off the New Jersey coast and 60 miles south of Long Island.

Government geologists estimate that the area holds 400 million to 1.4 billion barrels of oil and 2.6 trillion to 9.4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

Sale of the leases is part of the government's program to accelerate the leasing on the outer continental shelf to make the nation less dependent on foreign countries for oil. A key part of Weinstein's ruling was the fact that any oil found was to be brought ashore in pipelines. "The federal government has almost completely ignored the rights of states to prohibit pipelines from encroaching on their shores," he said in his decision.

"It is the states, not the federal government or the oil companies which will decide how the land inside the three-mile limit is to be used. State decisions banning pipelines are not inconceivable given the substantial environmental impact that a pipeline and oil spillings from a pipeline may have on coastal lands.'

The alternative to pipelines, bringing the oil ashore on tankers, would greatly increase the chances of a spill, the judge noted

The states most likely to be affected by pipelines or other onshore development such as new refineries are Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and New York.

Of their combined coastline of 3,365 miles, 18 per cent is used for public or private recreation and 28 per cent is undeveloped - an untouched home for wildlife.

These states are designing plans to manage the development of their coastal lands, but they won't be completed before next year. The fear among environmentalists was that oil development would come before they had their planning programs in operation to cope with it.

The preliminary injunction was designed to block the sale while the lawsuit seeking a permanent ban on offshore drilling continues. That could take many months, and Weinsein urged both sides to 'move promptly to reach a final resolution of the Other suits have been filed on environmental grounds to block federal oil lease sales, including one in April for the Gulf of Alaska, but these were not successful.

"The Alaska sale posed much more serious environmental problems," said Sarah Chasis of the Natura Resources Defense Council, which joined New York in the current suit. "The environment is much more sensitive and unknown.

"But that suit failed to stop it. They never got a hearing before the judge. We've gotten further. The judge has allowed us to put witnesses on the stand. Our case was filed earlier."

The argument made by New York was that the government failed to adequately assess the environmental impact of the accelerated leasing program, as required by the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA)

"A strong argument has been made, supported by considerable circumstantial evidence, that all the environmental impact statements and public hearings were but a characle and that the decision to lease was a foregone conclusion, once Presidents Nixon and Ford and others in their administration, including successive secretaries of interior, decided some years ago that production of hydrocarbons from the outer continental shelf should proceed speedily," Judge Welnstein sald.

"Nevertheless, on balance, the court has not been convinced that the (interior) secretary and his subordinates did not attempt to execute NEPA honestly.'

Ford Team Wins Test, Claims To Be Over Top

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - President Ford's supporters won a key test Friday in the Republican convention platform committee and his chief delegate counter said several uncommitted delegates have promised privately to announce their support for Ford after they arrive in

But James A. Baker III declined to say how many delegates he was talking about

Hours after Baker told a news conference Ford had more than enough votes to win the GOP presidential nomination, John Sears, campaignmanager for Ronald Reagan, said that he was sticking by his claim that Reagan has 1,140 votes, 10 more than needed for the nomination.

While the campaign strategists were issuing their conflicting claims, the platform committee was the scene of tests between Reagan and Ford supporters over foreign policy questions

The Ford camp won a key test when the commuttee voted 55 to 43 to reject an amendment that called for the United States to maintain perma-

Conspiracy Seen In Gulf, Gas Buyer Deals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Action by the Gulf Oil Corp. and a natural gas buyer "strongly hints at a conspiracy" to drive up prices, and the Justice Department should investigate, a Federal Power Commission judge said Friday.

FPC Administrative Law Judge Raymond M Zimmet ruled that Gulf did not deliver to an interstate pipeline volumes of gas required under an FPC certificate. Apparent inaction on the part of the pipeline gas buyer, Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., of Houston, to get Gulf to satisfy its obligations indicated a possible violation of antitrust laws to withhold gas to drive up prices, Zimmet said.

The judge recommended that the FPC refer the case to the Justice Department for "an investigation and appropriate criminal action against the two."

Both Guli and Texas Eastern said they would withhold comment until they had studied the decision.

authorized Gulf to sell Texas Eastern a total of 44 trillion cubic feet of gas. It was to be delivered in daily volume of from 500 million to 625 million cubic feet.

Deliveries began in 1964 and in 1971 Gulf sought to amend its certificate to raise the price, the decision said. Gulf said it could not deliver gas at the original price because it had overestimated the reserves available from an offshore Louisiana field. The commission denied the request, saying the

The judge recommended that Gulf be given a period of less than one month to begin delivering the maximum amount of gas If the company fails to comply, Zimmet continued, the FPC should go to court to compel specified performance.

Zimmet said that in denying Gulf's proposed cer-tificate amendment to raise prices, the FPC contended that Gulf could not be relieved of its obligations at the expense of ratepayers.

There is utterly no justification for Gulf either to gouge consumers through higher prices or to escape its gations on some recently contrived economic

Convention Delegates List Reads Like A Who's Who

By DON WALTON Star Staff Writer

Nebraska's 25-member delegation to the Republican National Convention reads like a who's who of GOP politics in the state.

It includes both U.S. senators, two former governors, a state senator, a public service commissioner, a University of Nebraska regent, a Lincoln city councilman and an Omaha city coun-

• And, for good measure, there are a former congressman, a former lieutenant governor, a former state senator, a former Republican state chairman and a number of current and former party and campaign officials.

Only two of the delegates are under age 40: ten are 61 or older. Ages reach from 33 to 73. Occupations range from farming and ranching to public relations, real estate, insurance, education, savings and loan, civil engineering and the practice of law.

Five of the delegates are women. All 25 elected at last May's primary election are white. Nine of them have previously attended national conventions as delegates. Eighteen of the delegates are pledged to support Ronald Reagan for the presidential nomina-

Reagan's successful Nebraska primary campaign in May, will head the delegation. Bish, 47, a real estate developer, was GOP state chairman from 1971 to 1972. Both Sens. Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis are Ford delegates. For Hruska, 72, who is returing from the Senate in January after 24 years in Congress, this will be his fourth national convention as a delegate. Hruska headed the Nebraska delegation in 1960 and 1968, and will serve this convention as chairman of the platform subcommittee on peace, security and foreign policy. Curtis, 71, now in his 38th year in Congress.

was a convention delegate in 1964 when he helped spearhead the nomination of Barry Goldwater. Former Govs. Val Peterson of Wayne and Robert Crosby of Lincoln are the convention

Convention Delegates List Reads Like A Who's Who

By DON WALTON Star Staff Writer

Nebraska's 25-member delegation to the Republican National Convention reads like a who's who of GOP politics in the state.

It includes both U.S. senators, two former governors, a state senator, a public service commissioner, a University of Nebraska regent, a Lincoln city councilman and an Omaha city councilwoman

And, for good measure, there are a former congressman, a former lieutenant governor, a former state senator, a former Republican state chairman and a number of current and former party and campaign officials.

Only two of the delegates are under age 40: ten are 61 or older. Ages reach from 33 to 73.

Occupations range from farming and ranching to public relations, real estate, insurance, education, savings and loan, civil engineering and the practice of law.

Five of the delegates are women. All 25 elected at last May's primary election are white.

Nine of them have previously attended national conventions as delegates.

Eighteen of the delegates are pledged to support Ronald Reagan for the presidential nomination. Seven will cast their votes for President Ford Milan Bish of Grand Island, who led Reagan's successful Nebraska primary campaign in May, will head the delegation.

Bish, 47, a real estate developer, was GOP state chairman from 1971 to 1972.

Both Sens. Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis are Ford delegates.

For Hruska, 72, who is retiring from the Senate in January after 24 years in Congress, this will be his fourth national convention as a Hruska headed the Nebraska delegation in 1960 and 1968, and will serve this convention as chairman of the platform subcommittee on peace, security and foreign policy.

Curtis, 71, now in his 38th year in Congress, was a convention delegate in 1964 when he helped spearhead the nomination of Barry Goldwater.

Former Govs. Val Peterson of Wayne and Robert Crosby of Lincoln are the convention

Peterson has been a delegate five straight times, beginning in 1960. This will also be Crosby's fifth convention as a delegate; his first such assignment came in 1956 and he has been at every succeeding convention with the exception

Crosby, 65, an attorney, was a state senator and lieutenant governor prior to his 1953-55 term

Legislature into line again.

Following the adoption of increased state tax rates by the State Board of Equalization Thursday — which was preceded and accompanied by Exon statements decrying what he feels is legislative overspending — the chairmen of two important Unicameral committees vowed to cooperate with the executive branch and declared they are willing to hold 1977-78 state spending at this fiscal year's level.

'I think that we as a Legislature have to give that a whirl once," said Sen. Calvin Carsten of Avoca, Revenue Committee

Gov. Jim Exon has whipped the chairman. "I would vote for totally no increases," said Appropriations Committee Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings.

> If the sentiments of those two committee chairmen are any indication, it looks as if Gov. Exon will have cooperation the likes of which he hasn't seen since the Legislature completely caved in and adopted his budget as written a few years

It is hoped both branches, in their zeal to hold down spending, will still be able to recognize the legitimate needs of the state and will not try to out-Scrooge one another for political advantage only.

Two More Commissioners?

Petitions were presented to the Lancaster County Election Commissioner Friday asking that a proposal to increase the size of the board be placed on the November ballot.

An increase in the board from three to five members is being sought by those behind the petition drive. County Assessor Fritz Meyer first introduced the idea.

If the proposal is indeed placed on the ballot, Lancaster County voters should seek to understand the motivations behind an effort to increase the size of the county board and they should ask themselves how an immediate increase in the size of the county board would make that board more responsive to the citizens of the county or how it would resolve conflicts which now exist between the board and other elected county officials.

The elected department heads might ponder that, too. It is entirely conceivable that, depending on prevailing political winds, an expanded board would only harden or intensify problems which now

The problem is the structure of county government and that is a problem which two additional commissioners probably will not be able to cure.

At any rate, the county board's size will increase in the future as the county grows. To add members now seems to be little more than a waste of money.

Just Another Reagan Delegate

One of the prime tub-thumpers for the Ford administration has been Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, a cabinet officer with unequaled zest for politicking.

Butz stumped for former President Nixon and he has traveled the country in behalf of Nixon's successor (who is in trouble in farm country, but largely for reasons out of Butz' control).

In Omaha this spring Butz drew a comparison of sorts between the incumbent President and his challenger, Ronald Reagan.

Reagan has no farm program, Butz declared.

But the fickle finger of fate has touched Butz.

According to some published reports, the ag secretary, a delegate to the GOP national convention from his home county in Indiana, must, according to law, east his vote for Reagan on the first ballot.

How uncomfortable Ford's passionate servant must be with that irony.

CHARLES B. SEIB

How They Reacted

WASHINGTON - Politicians are supposed to play the game.

Ronald Reagan broke that rule when he picked Richard Schweiker to be his runningmate — if the lightning strikes in Kansas City. He acted without warning. The result was new proof that, as A. J. Liebling said, newspapers can be more fun than a quiet girl.

I suppose this is journalistic dirty pool, but let's look back over the first wave of reaction to the selection (my typewriter, being well trained in the news business, tried to call it the "bizarre" selection) of Schweiker.

There was, of course, shock shock so deep it drove a New York Times editorialist to whimsy. He wrote of "Ronnie" Reagan, "with feather in his cap. eyes squinting, guns a-blazin', swooping down on the enemy camp, snatching a hostage and riding off "through the vastnesses of Penn's Woods into the western sunset." That's not your everyday Times response to a political develop-

But most other editorial writers managed to keep their cool A sampler

The Washington Post found that while it was all but impossible to guess whether the move would help or hurt Reagan, it was a bold one and "it may just have been wise." The Wall Street Journal called it a "desperate catch-up gamble."

The Boston Globe said it "could lose him more votes than it gains" and the Chicago Tribune provided a bucolic touch by agreeing with a congressman who compared Reagan to "a farmer selling his last cow to buy a militing machine."

公 公 公 Among the political columtemperate Hell has no fury like a pundit surprised. Of the heavy latters, only Torn Wicker of the New York Times and Wilham F. Buckley Jr. had kind or hopeful words for Reagan.

Wicker found the Schweiker selection a "bold and innovative moves, they are supposed to a "stunning political move." A act. Rowland Evans and Robert Novak: There was "chilling evidence of disaster" in the "private anguish" (!) of Clarke Reed. Mississippi's state chairman. The imminent loss of Reed's support "seems to have collapsed the strategy inherent in picking Schweiker."

Joseph Kraft: "The bombshell has backfired, blowing the Reagan campaign out of the water and catapulting President Ford into a certain first-ballot nomination . . . " (Kraft, by the way, gets the prize for the most tortured metaphor.)

George F. Will: It was "slapstick," but "Rengan and Schweiker have not exactly contributed to the public stock of harmless pleasure. Their caper is another subtraction from the dignity of the political Bruder to close the batting order with a flourish: "This political nists the reaction was less year, which has had almost everything, now has its classical political blunder." The Schweiker "boo-boo" has definged Reagan, he said, and "Jerry Ford has shown himself one of the luckiest politicians in America."

has come into a convention so tion as Ford has been. Even sharply challenged and so little in command of his own party.

President Truman had strong opposition in 1948, but was never No president in modern times so hard-pressed for renominaafter he had withdrawn as a candidate for renomination, Lyndon Johnson had greater command of the Democratic convention in 1968 than Ford does of the Republicans today.

The President's forces here were unable, for example, even to push support of the Equal Rights Amendment through a platform subcommittee, although support for ERA is a passionate cause for Mrs. Ford and has been part of Republican platforms since the 1940s.

Ford managers here want to avoid stumbling into a fight with Reagan on some procedural or platform issue, for the obvious reason that they might either show weakness by losing or, in winning, create an emotional backlash that would swing delegates to Reagan. That's prudent strategy, but it serves only to emphasize how evenly divided the convention appears to be. * * *

On the other hand, Reagan despite brilliant management by John Sears - cannot seem to find the means by which to pull in enough of the uncommitted delegates or win over enough of Ford's to reach the magic number. Close as he is, the basic Reagan problem remains what it has been from the start - no matter where their hearts may secretly lie, too many Republicans believe that rejecting an incumbent president of their own party is too big a risk to take. Sears's many tactical ploys do not include the suddenly developing move to put Sen. James Buckley of New York in nomination. Nor, if that happens, is it likely to help Reagan, since the Buckley name is likely to draw more Reagan delegates than Ford supporters. Buckley's reasons for letting his name be used are not clear. But the Buckley movement, headed by Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, appears to be designed to drive a hard-core conservative platform down Ford's throat - and Reagan's, for that matter.

This suggests at least the possibility of a conservative third party if this convention does not produce a platform and a ticket acceptable to Helms and others on the far right. Their instrument could be the so-called Freedom and Independence Party, organized by William Rusher and others, and said to have a ballot place in numerous states already.

In this situation, and despite all denials, a Ford-Reagan ticket may be a strong possibility. The two candidates have fought to something like a draw, through all the primaries and state conventions. Ford's victory, if he wins it, will be so narrow that Reagan supporters might claim second place for their man almost as a matter of right.

If the threat of a conservative third party should come to seem real, Ford might feel all the more necessity for putting Reagan on his ticket. Against their alliance - even if it would be more of a shotgun wedding a conservative rebellion would be highly unlikely.

Under other circumstances, Ford might find numerous Republicans who would bring more national strength to his ticket. But in the circumstances he has to deal with, his first task will be to pull his riven party together and hold it together

Beyond that, Reagan unquestionably would bring strength to a Ford ticket in California, Texas and Florida, three states without which a Republican victory against Jimmy Carter and the Democrats would be almost inconceivable In other sizable states likely to be battlegrounds this fall — such as North Carolina and Indiana, in both of which Reagan won primaries - his name on the ticket would be helpful.

His selection, nevertheless, would be a sort of final paradox for Gerald Ford; it would mean he had not really been able to control even the choice of his own running-mate.

Lincoln, Neb. Like winter snow-plows scoop up a blizzard's fall, so the O Street paving has been scrapped up. Sections of our thoroughfare have been repaved, to be dedicated early in September with a street dance for nimble feet.

Months, years will roll by. Birds will sing and nest in the trees, bright flowers will please, while fountains will lift their arms to sparkle in the noonday sun or the cool moonlight. Oh, it will be so pretty. Is it worth going $250 million and until the year 2000 for?

August 7 front-page headlines read: "Emergency Meeting Called On Sales, Income Taxes." This, before we are even a year into this mad spending boomerang.

To Clear A Point

It is obvious from the "Point of View" article written by Coleen Seng and appearing in The Star's Monday edition, that the Lincoln Alliance consists of some of the most established churches and representative organizations in Lancaster County. The commitments that these churches and organizations have made and the purposes of the Alliance are commendable. As a citizen, I now feel that I have access to a vehicle for influencing the decisions which affect my life, property and business. No longer do I have to sit on the sidelines and watch the "experts," the "planners," the Chamber of Commerce, the "O Street Gang," the road-building industry and the editors of the major newspapers run our town to their advantage. Let the word go out to these people that as much as they may not like it, there is a large electorate that intends to make democracy work in Lancaster County as it was intended to work.

It should be noted that Mr. Dobler, the editor of The Star, broke his promise to the Alliance Executive Committee. Mr. Dobler promised the Albance that the article submitted by Coleen Seng would be published unedited. The draft submitted referred to Mr. Dobler specifically in several instances. Mr. Dobler took the liberty to edit out any reference to himself. It is understandable that Mr. Dobler would not want to be associated with his editorial, however, he should have had the courage to stand behind his opinion and the decency to keep a promise. DOUG GERMAN

Editor's Note: The reference to Mr. Dobler in Colorn Seng's letter was deleted by an editorial assistant who processed the material. The deletion was made with the mistaken the that the editorial in question was written by Bob Schrepf rather than Dobler and that the reference to Dobler was, therefore, simply a mistake by the letter-writer.

According to Dubber, no promise was made to run the Song letter unclited, and no such promises are ever made, despi the fact that the letter did run exactly as submitted except for the reference to Dobler as author of the officerial.

Lincoln Alliance

Lincoln, Neb. Since The Lincoln Star editor resorted to scare tactics in a recent editorial describing the Lincoln Alliance, it seems that effective citizen organization is something the writer fears. I am left with the conclusion that The Star favors citizen influence in determining the future only to the point where it starts to effect change. Otherwise, why would the attempt be made to discredit with untruths the organization which potentially has the best chance to involve citizenry in decision-making by such fearful descriptions as "ruthlessness," "lack of organization sovereign-"oligarchy," etc.

As an Alliance council member representing the Unitarian Church, I have observed the decision-making of the council on the part of organizations with sovereignly intact. I find this a good thing. All decisions have been made in a democratic manner by all and I see no one using undue influence either from the Alliance staff or the elected officers and member representatives. Instead, I see intelligent leadership from the community expressing diverse views on the issues and voting according to those convictions and a strong sense of sovereignty. At any time when the Alliance ceases to be the democratic organization it now is and becomes the oligarchy the editor would like to have the community think it is, members will drop like flies after a frost, and I certainly among them.

As issues are acted upon, respember that those actions have been approved by a majority vote of the council which represents 27 membership organizations. Those actions are then carried out by the steering committee through the establishment of a committee made up of individuals from member groups who have an interest in acting to effect the change. The steering committee is composed of four officers, 33 vice presidents and committee chairpeople. I would think that the involvement of so many people representing the member organizations of the Alliance does indeed reflect the will of the people. If there is any manipulation of the people involved, I suggest that it has been attempted but not by the Alliance.

I think Alliance members will agree that the Alliance should be understood for what it is - a democratic organization of critizens - and that elected officials maintain their independence and integrity while being as responsive to the citizens' point of view as they are to the business community.

Let one not conclude that when the Alliance has won an issue contrary to one's personal views, it is due to organizational muscle nor that when the Alliance loses an issue, their reasoning was not valid. There are dangarous untradus in both assertious CONNE STAUSS

Following the adoption of increased state tax rates by the State Board of Equalization Thursday - which was preceded and accompanied by Exon statements decrying what he feels is legislative overspending — the chairmen of two important Unicameral committees vowed to cooperate with the executive branch and declared they are willing to hold 1977-78 state spending at this fiscal year's level.

Two More Commissioners?

Petitions were presented to the Lancaster County Election Commissioner Friday asking that a proposal to increase the size of the board be placed on the November ballot

An increase in the board from three to five members is being sought by those behind the petition drive. County Assessor Fritz Meyer first introduced the idea.

If the proposal is indeed placed on the ballot, Lancaster County voters should seek to understand the motivations behind an effort to increase the size of the county board and they should ask themselves how an immediate increase in the size of the county board would make that board more responsive to the citizens of the county or how it would resolve conflicts which now exist between the board and other elected county officials.

The elected department heads might ponder that, too. It is entirely conceivable that, depending on prevailing political winds, an expanded board would only harden or intensify problems which now

The problem is the structure of county government and that is a problem which two additional commissioners probably will not be able to cure.

At any rate, the county board's size will increase in the future as the county grows. To add members now seems to be little more than a waste of money.

Just Another Reagan Delegate

One of the prime tub-thumpers for the Ford administration has been Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, a cabinet officer with unequaled zest for politicking.

Butz stumped for former President Nixon and he has traveled the country in behalf of Nixon's successor (who is in trouble in farm country, but largely for reasons out of Butz' control).

In Omaha this spring Butz drew a comparison of sorts between the incumbent President and his challenger, Ronald Reagan has no farm program, Butz declared.

But the fickle finger of fate has touched Butz.

According to some published reports, the ag secretary, a delegate to the GOP national convention from his home county in Indiana, must, according to law, cast his vote for Reagan on the first ballot.

How uncomfortable Ford's passionate servant must be with that irony.

WASHINGTON — Politicians are supposed to play the game. Before they make important moves, they are supposed to press can speculate and advise and judiciously weigh the alter-

Ronald Reagan broke that rule when he picked Richard Schweiker to be his runningmate - if the lightning strikes in Kansas City. He acted without warning. The result was new proof that, as A. J. Liebling said, newspapers can be more fun than a quiet girl.

I suppose this is journalistic dirty pool, but let's look back over the first wave of reaction to the selection (my typewriter, being well trained in the news business, tried to call it the "bizarre" selection) of Schweiker.

There was, of course, shock shock so deep it drove a New York Times editorialist to whimsy. He wrote of "Ronnie" Reagan, "with feather in his cap, eyes squinting, guns a-blazin', swooping down on the enemy camp, snatching a hostage and riding off "through the vastnesses of Penn's Woods into the western sunset." That's not your everyday Times response to a political develop-

But most other editorial writers managed to keep their cool. A sampler:

The Washington Post found that while it was all but impossible to guess whether the move would help or hurt Reagan, it was a bold one and "it may just have been wise." The Wall Street Journal called it a "desperate catch-up gamble."

The Boston Globe said it "could lose him more votes than it gains" and the Chicago Tribune provided a bucolic touch by agreeing with a congressman who compared Reagan to "a farmer selling his last cow to buy a milking machine."

* * * Among the political columnists, the reaction was less temperate. Hell has no fury like a pundit surprised. Of the heavy hitters, only Tom Wicker of the New York Times and William F. Buckley Jr. had kind or hopeful words for Reagan.

Wicker found the Schweiker selection a "bold and innovative finished, up stepped the news stroke" that might turn out to be magazines with their brother a "stunning political move." A act. Carl Rowan chose the middle road, saying the choice could turn out to be a "stroke of genius," but it also could be one of the great miscalculations of all time.

It remained for David S. Broder to close the batting order with a flourish: "This political year, which has had almost everything, now has its classical political blunder." The Schweiker "boo-boo" has defanged Reagan, he said, and "Jerry Ford has shown himself one of the luckiest politicians in America."

President Truman had strong opposition in 1948, but was never has come into a convention so tion as Ford has been. Even after he had withdrawn as a candidate for renomination, Lyndon Johnson had greater command of the Democratic convention in 1968 than Ford does of the Republicans today. The President's forces here were unable, for example, even to push support of the Equal Rights Amendment through a platform subcommittee, although support for ERA is a passionate cause for Mrs. Ford and has been part of Republican platforms since the 1940s.

Ford managers here want to avoid stumbling into a fight with Reagan on some procedural or platform issue, for the obvious reason that they might either show weakness by losing or, in winning, create an emotional backlash that would swing delegates to Reagan. That's prudent strategy, but it serves only to emphasize how evenly divided the convention appears to be.

* * * On the other hand, Reagan despite brilliant management by John Sears - cannot seem to find the means by which to pull in enough of the uncommitted delegates or win over enough of Ford's to reach the magic number. Close as he is, the basic Reagan problem remains what it has been from the start - no matter where their hearts may secretly lie, too many Republicans believe that rejecting an incumbent president of their own party is too big a risk to take. Sears's many tactical ploys do not include the suddenly developing move to put Sen. James Buckley of New York in nomination. Nor, if that happens, is it likely to help Reagan, since the Buckley name is likely to draw more Reagan delegates than Ford supporters.

Buckley's reasons for letting his name be used are not clear. But the Buckley movement, headed by Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, appears to be designed to drive a hard-core conservative platform down Ford's throat - and Reagan's, for that matter.

This suggests at least the possibility of a conservative third party if this convention does not produce a platform and a ticket acceptable to Helms and others on the far right. Their instrument could be the so-called Freedom and Independence Party, organized by William Rusher and others, and said to have a ballot place in numerous states already.

☆ ☆ ☆ In this situation, and despite all denials, a Ford-Reagan ticket may be a strong possibility. The two candidates have fought to something like a draw, through all the primaries and state conventions. Ford's victory, if he wins it, will be so narrow that Reagan supporters might claim

second place for their man

almost as a matter of right.

If the threat of a conservative third party should come to seem real, Ford might feel all the more necessity for putting Reagan on his ticket. Against their alliance - even if it would be more of a shotgun wedding a conservative rebellion would be highly unlikely.

Under other circumstances, Ford might find numerous Republicans who would bring more national strength to his ticket. But in the circumstances he has to deal with, his first task will be to pull his riven party together and hold it together.

Beyond that, Reagan unquestionably would bring strength to a Ford ticket in California, Texas and Florida, three states without which a Republican victory against Jimmy Carter and the Democrats would be almost inconceivable. In other sizable states likely to be battlegrounds this fall - such as North Carolina and Indiana, in both of which Reagan won primaries - his name on the ticket would be helpful.

His selection, nevertheless, would be a sort of final paradox for Gerald Ford; it would mean he had not really been able to control even the choice of his own running-mate.

"Well, Doctor, I will acknowledge your superpority ""No," replied Luther, "that is not it, the reason I liked mine better than yours is that every child and illiterate servant present could understand mine and knew what I was talking about, but much of yours

_ Some years ago there was a prominent politician in this state who had some oratorical ability along with a "flowery gift of gab." After one of his speeches two turmers met and one asked the other if he had heard the speech, and on learning that he had not he said: "Man you don I know what you missed; believe that was the linest speech I ever heard, he sure went to town T "What did he talk about," asked his triend. After hesitating a little. "I don I know, he never did say what he was talking about!" On a number of occasions letters have come asking the objective of other words fix them up where they will want to obey God and keep His Commandments, which is the whole duty of man

"It is singular how long the rotten will hold logether provided you do not handle it roughly." Picture a rotten apple hanging on a tree or elsewhere, it holds together a long time unless it falls or is handled a little roughly, and then you have "rotten apple sauce." One meaning of "corruption" is "rottenness." The earth became corrupt, or rotten in the days of Noah. God handled it rather roughly, it went to pieces and there was none left except the man who found grace in God's sight, the man who feared God, and obeyed Him! - Some have estimated there might have been 480 billions of people in the earth when the flood came! - The Jewish nation as a whole became corrupt, rotten God has handled them roughly through the centuries and behold their his tory, suffering, and how they have been scattered.

There is much rottenness and corruption in the home and family life of our nation, there is much rottenness and corruption in the political life of our nation, the main cause of the corruption and rottenness in the family and governmental life of our nation can be traced to corruption and rottenness in our Protestant Christian Church life, and every one of us who have taken such yours are especially responsible! Did not God handle us roughly when He permitted our President to be as sassinated? No doubt in our mind but that this 'permissive providence" of The Almighty is a rebuke to the entire nation! Generally speaking. The Church reluses to "get rough" with its own rottenness of unbelief, apostacy, rejection of God's Laws and Word, and so the corruption holds together and increases, the civil powers of government refuse to "get rough" with murder robbery vile im morality - have heard it said time and again that the City of Washington, the seat of the great power of this nation is the worse "sink of sin and cesapool of iniquity" of such crimes in all this great land, and therefore corruption and rottenness "hold together What can one man do? Our first article appeared on the first Saturday of March, 1962, and with the exception of the following week there has been one in every Saturday paper and in the first one and in all the following ones: directly or indirectly, we have talked about the fact that generally speaking The Church is corrupt and has junked discipline. and the results of "corrupting God's way in the earth" will mean in the end, and the end might be near, the visitation of the wrath and curse of God upon us as individuals, our nation, and the world, calling attention to the fact that this was the cause of the destruction of the world in the days of Noah, the cause of the visitation of the wrath and curse of God upon the Jewish people down through the centuries, the cause of the drappearance from the face of the earth of great cities and nations and kingdoms of antiquity, and the cause of all the disasters, troubles, etc., of mankind including the calamities we read about in every day's newspaper! The "heathen rage" to get rid of God's Moral Law. Ten Commandments, and The Althighty holds them in decision laughs, and vexes them with all adversity. We have also in these articles continually talked about the fact that God sent His Son to the earth to keep His Commandments perfectly and that He-will impute that perfect rigineousness to every soul that sincerely accepts and believes on Jesus Christ, and will write His Commandments in their hearts, or in

Initial figures on the release of prisoners under LB567, the 'good time law," shows that "we have not threatened Nebraska with this type of release," Correctional Services Director Joseph Vitek said. LB567 provides for the discharge of prisoners when their sentences, minus earned time off, are up. Vitek said that out of 176 inmates commuted by the Pardon Board through the 1975 law, 11 or 6.3% — have been returned to prison. This compares to 56 men of 586, or 9.6%, for all categories of release who have been returned.

Thirty-five individuals sentenced since LB567 was enacted have been discharged, and none has been returned, Vitek said.

College Dean Tells Educators To Be Assertive In Profession

By HARRY JACKSON Star Staff Writer

A college dean told a gathering of Nebraska school administrators that any significant progress in education depends on educators getting a grasp on the profession. Dr. Robert Howsam, dean of the College of Education for the University of Houston (Tex.) spoke Friday to about 250 participants in the Heritage Harvest Horizons education conference. "The reason the schools are in trouble is that the teaching fast enough to keep up with demands," Howsam said. We must press for control of education nationwide is 18 profession has not developed

"In medical schools, instructors are usually practitioners who leach part time, they set up rules for what their people must accomplish to become members of that profession.

"We've made it too easy for people to come in, leave and even come in again," Howsam said of education. Howsam advocated changes in the teacher training structure including adding an additional year for teachers to get tenure and an internship after college. He said that, contrary to other professions, the average number of college hours used for teacher

"You can't train teachers in 18 hours," he said. "There is no way we should accept teachers education if it doesn't provide the best . . . in educational resources." Teacher education takes the low place on the totem pole in most universities, Howman said,

. . not even rating the funds given freshman English. He also advocated the reducing of the number of schools of education in the nation, saying that 1,400 is too many for a professionally controlled teacher education arena. He said that education basics aren't governed by the past, because past situations may not be applicable to the present. our profession," Howsam said. hours. Site Said Accessible To Handicapped

The recently completed Ruth attract handicapped persons Hill Elementary School, com-pletely accessible to the handicapped, will be the site of the Nebraska White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals Aug. 21.

Conference director Rick Robertson noted that the school, at 5230 Tipperary Trail, includes provisions for the blind, deaf and elderly, making it "a natural" for a conference which hopes to from a 17-county area "to assess problems of mentally and physically handicapped individuals. Robertson said conference organizers hope to solicit suggestions from handicapped persons on ways to help them 'live independently and with dignity, and with integration into community life." The suggestions will be compiled and assessed at the state conference in December. Recommendations and solutions developed at that session will be presented at a national forum next year.

Handicapped persons with needs for transportation or escorts, and those who are homebound but would like to have input into the sessions are asked to contact Robertson at his office in Suite 204, 411 S. 13th, Lincoln, or by calling 477-

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"

Psalms 2 and Acts 4:25

On a certain day two sermons had been preached, one by Martin Luther and the other by a friend and his co-laborer we will call Doctor B. Luther said to his friend: "You preached a good sermon, but I liked mine better than yours." "Well, Doctor, I will acknowledge your superiority." "No," replied Luther, "that is not it, the reason I liked mine better than yours is that every child and illiterate servant present could understand mine and knew what I was talking about, but much of yours was only understood by the learned and the scholars."

. Some years ago there was a prominent politician in this state who had some oratorical ability along with a "flowery gift of gab." After one of his speeches two farmers met and one asked the other if he had heard the speech, and on learning that he had not he said: "Man, you don't know what you missed; believe that was the finest speech I ever heard; he sure 'went to town'!" "What did he talk about," asked his friend. After hesitating a little, "I don't know, he never did say what he

On a number of occasions letters have come asking the objective of this column, which probably is another way of asking, "What are you talking about." Our first article appeared on the first Saturday of March, 1962, and with the exception of the following week there has been one in every Saturday paper; and in the first one and in all the following ones, directly or indirectly, we have talked about the fact that generally speaking The Church is corrupt and has junked discipline, and the results of "corrupting God's way in the earth" will mean in the end, and the end might be near, the visitation of the wrath and curse of God upon us as individuals, our nation, and the world, calling attention to the fact that this was the cause of the destruction of the world in the days of Noah, the cause of the visitation of the wrath and curse of God upon the Jewish people down through the centuries, the cause of the disappearance from the face of the earth of great cities and nations and kingdoms of antiquity, and the cause of all the disasters, troubles, etc., of mankind including the calamities we read about in every day's newspaper! The "heathen rage" to get rid of God's Moral Law, Ten Commandments, and The Almighty holds them in derision, laughs, and vexes them with all adversity. We have also in these articles continually talked about the fact that God sent His Son to the earth to keep His Commandments perfectly, and that He-will impute that perfect righteousness to every soul that sincerely accepts and believes on Jesus Christ, and will write His Commandments in their hearts, or in P. O. Box 405, DECATUR, GEORGIA 30031 other words fix them up where they will want to "obey God, and keep His Commandments, which is the whole duty of man.

"It is singular how long the rotten will hold together, provided you do not handle it roughly." Picture a rotten apple hanging on a tree, or elsewhere, it holds together a long time unless it falls or is handled a little roughly, and then you have "rotten apple sauce." One meaning of "corruption" is "rottenness." The earth became corrupt, or rotten in the days of Noah. God handled it rather roughly, it went to pieces and there was none left except the man who found grace in God's sight, the man who feared God, and obeyed Him! - Some have estimated there might have been 480 billions of people in the earth when the flood came! - The Jewish nation as a whole became corrupt, rotten, God has handled them roughly through the centuries and behold their history, suffering, and how they have been scattered.

There is much rottenness and corruption in the home and family life of our nation; there is much rottenness and corruption in the political life of our nation; the main cause of the corruption and rottenness in the family and governmental life of our nation can be traced to corruption and rottenness in our Protestant Christian Church life, and every one of us who have taken such vows are especially responsible! Did not God handle us roughly when He permitted our President to be assassinated? No doubt in our mind but that this "permissive providence" of The Almighty is a rebuke to the entire nation! Generally speaking, The Church refuses to "get rough" with its own rottenness of unbelief, apostacy, rejection of God's Laws and Word, and so the corruption holds together and increases; the civil powers of government refuse to "get rough" with murder, robbery, vile immorality - have heard it said time and again that the City of Washington, the seat of the great power of this nation, is the worse "sink of sin and cesspool of iniquity" of such crimes in all this great land, and therefore corruption and rottenness "hold together.

What can one man do? He can do the "one thing needful," read what is in Luke 10:41, 42: "And Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou are careful and troubled about many things; But 'one thing is needful'; and Mary hath chosen 'that good part,' which shall not be taken away from her." — The good part Mary chose was to "sit at the feet of Jesus and hear His Word." Go and do likewise, get rid of corruption and rottenness, become "good fruit" by the power of God!

Drought Losses Total Millions, Exon Told On the brighter side of the pic-county area of drought-stricken northeast Nebraska currently stand at an estimated $181 million, Gov. J. James Exon was informed Friday by state agricultural experts.

'Severe losses are being sustained by some individual family farm operations," according to the report given to the governor, who requested the in-formation since he is considering a drought disaster declaration for the northeast portion of the state.

Compiling the figures was the State Emergency Board, consisting of officials from the federal Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Farmers Home Administration, the Extension Service and the Soil Conservation Service.

Withholding Rate Is 17%

Nebraska Tax Commissioner William E. Peters announced Friday that new withholding rate for the state tax on individual income will be 17% effective on all pay periods beginning on or after Sept. 1.

The Revenue Department will mail all permit holders revised sales tax rate schedules and withholding rate cards within the next few days, Peters said. The actions result from the increase in the state sales tax from 2.5% to 3% as of Sept. 1, and the individual income tax rate from 15% to 17% of federal liability, retroactive to Jan. 1.

The same retroactive period applies to the corporate tax. New rates are 4.25% on the first $25,000 of Nebraska taxable income, and 4.675% on amounts exceeding $25,000.

THE QUINTESSENTIAL CHEERLEADER ... despite boogie music and new dance routines, old spirit remains.

Spirit Still Essence Of Cheerleading

From far off, you hear it coming . . . this powerful chanting, vibrating on an expectant Friday morning. It sounds like one of those precision marching units giving a guts-all performance before a reviewing stand full of military brass. But it isn't.

No. somewhere in this larynx-wrenching exuberance is something, some people have said, that produces poise, confidence, character: the kind of stuff that makes strong women. And now they enter ... about 50 girls, pigtails, braces, and all, brimming with sunshine, and they're shouting their lungs out. Their sound swells into the cavernous Men's Physical Education Building, up to its waterstained ceiling, shouting such things as

"Boy, are we enthusiastic: H-A-P-P-Y. This Friday was an important one for these girls who were among the 116 attending the All Star Cheerleading Conference (ASCC) at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. This was the climax, when squads of cheerleaders, representing such places as Lewellen, Tekamah, York and Grand Island, would cheer for recognition. Three judges were to watch the 10 squads.present cheering and pompon routines. Winners would be chosen: the best squads, the most improved and the most spirited.

This was the first year the ASCC has awarded a trophy to the grand champion squad, said Maria Stevens, 27, a former cheerleader at Center High School in Kansas City who has been ASCC director

The ASCC was the third national cheerleading clinic held at UNL this summer. About five or six cheerleading clinics operate nationally. Some, like the ASCC, are affiliated with cheerleader supply companies.

The ASCC has two year-round staff members. But during summer, the Kansas City, Mo.-based company hires cheerleaders from colleges across the country to help direct the 60 clinics.

"We're sorry there has to be winners and losers," ASCC staffer April Messick from San Francisco told the adrenalm-charged girls before Friday's competition began. "But you're all really winners to

Of 21 squads that came Monday, only 10 were there for the optional Friday competition. Towns like Stratton and Milford had already left.

Because of increased emphasis on women's athletics, cheerleading has become more competitive, and, in some places, a sport in itself. Competition is changing the character of cheerleading.

Although in most small Midwestern towns, cheerleaders still are elected by the student body, "more and more schools" are having outsiders judge the tryouts. This puts cheerleading contestants on an equal un-status-influenced footing. It's more objective. "The one who is the very best is going to get it." Which may not be all for the good, Ms. Stevens said, because, with too much emphasis on the contestant's athletic prowess, you "lose the spirit of being a cheerleader. You've got to have an inner feeling that you are leading your whole school to back your team," she said. "When it becomes a sport, you care less if the team wins. You could care less if you have a big or little pep club. The personal appearances become more important. Sometimes they're not leading the others. They use wordy cheers that people can't

Being a sport is fine for competition. Some of these girls work very hard. They practice for hours every day. But the ones elected by the students are more likely to be involved in the total picture instead of themselves."

Different areas of the country have different cheerleading styles. Northern states — Michigan, for instance - prefer rock-type cheers, Ms. Stevens said. The Midwest, while using more precision cheerleading, also "works boogie into it."

Judging by Friday's output of cheers, things have matured since the days the crowds shouted "V-I-C-T-O-R-Y" while clapping a steady beat. The victory yells of today are syncopated, more soulful; with claps and stomps slicing in an unpredictable beats. Cheerleaders do the bump and pompon routines to disco records.

Cheers use words such as boogie, trucking, and, especially super (as a prefix to either great or fantastic). The cheerleaders cheer themselves; first spelling the word "Cheerleaders," then a line of chant about being the best; all sung to the tune of the Kink's hit, "All Day and All of the Night."

Only a few squads would win awards. Near high noon, the judges announced the winners. Then, what an explosion . . . an emotional H-bomb. The body moisture that for five days had been expelled as sweat, now rushed down their faces, tears of accomplishment.

The York High School squad had done it: the best varsity squad, the most improved squad and the grand champion. The 18-members were squealing, sobbing, hugging, kissing, twining themselves into a catharis of exultation. Some rushed to embrace their sponsor who had watched all morning from the

So, when all's said and done, what do these clinics hope to accomplish?

"More than anything, we tell the girls that artificial spirit will not arouse anyone," Ms. Stevens said. "You've got to be excited to excite someone else. You've got to be excited about being a cheerleader We teach them to show leadership. We teach them that honesty is important. We emphasize their appearance. They are leaders of the schools and we tell them people are watching them.'

Just in case you think you've read the last budget story for the year, here's another.

The State Board of Education Friday approved a $138,357,010 budget request for the 1977-78 fiscal year, up 18% from the budget for the present year, $116,626,869.

Friday's budget request seeks $93.6 million from state taxes with most of the balance coming from federal funds, and a small portion from revolving and other sources. Also included is a $15 million increase for state aid to public schools, according to Al Bielen, financial administrator of the State Department of Education.

There is no fat in this budget," Bielen told the board as he explained that some 90% of the budget will go for programs which will benefit

Those priorities include $70 million for state aid; $17.8 million for special education, to provide 90% reimbursement of excess costs to local schools; $331,666 for the Cozad Diagnostic Center (formerly the state school for retarded); an additional $25,954 from the general fund for workload increase and $22,435 from the general fund for a new bilingual education program.

The bilingual program will be financed by federal monies ($7,536) as well and will provide testing material for students of limited English to determine their capacity to and functioning in the English language, as well as developing additional instructional material for teachers.

But, in spite of unanimous approval of the board, the budget isn't out of deep water yet. The budget office of the Department of Administrative Services acts on the request Sept. 15, and then it goes on to the Unicameral.

Bielen cautioned the board that "this is going to be a tight year and we'll probably feel some

In other action, the board adopted a list of priorities for policy development, topped by reorganization of school districts. Nebraska, with 1200 such districts, currently leads the nation in numbers and consolidation has been in the winds

Second on that particular list is state aid and improved financial support for education, another area of recent controversy.

The board also went on record in favor of programs for gifted students by approving a policy statement on gifted students which emphasized the need to "identify and cultivate the latent talents of the state's diverse student

County for days at a time.

Thus, it is often difficult for students from the Spotted Tail School District in the north central Nebraska area to travel the 35 miles to the county seat, Springview, to attend the only high school, according to Elmer Richardson, a resident of the area.

Richardson, the Neil Burkinshaws, the Havor Heydens and the Curtis Hitchcocks have chosen to send their children (eight in all) to Burke High School, 15 miles to the north in South Dakota on a paved highway.

For the past few years the farm families have been willing to pay the $1,300 per pupil tuition for the convenience.

'But, it's been awful dry the past few years," Richardson told the State Board of Education Friday, and the families have sought assistance from the local school district to pay the tuition. The district does not provide bus transportation for the pupils.

The matter came to the baord Friday after Richardson and friends were turned down by the local board at least three times over the past year. Richardson and Carol Heyden represented themselves, while attorney Warren Argenbright spoke for the board.

Richardson said that the impassable roads, the long trip to Springview, the fact that Burke has a doctor and a hospital and the fact that the mandatory enforcement ages of attendance (7-16 years by Nebraska law) have never been enforced in the district, all made the decision to send the kids to Burke feasible.

He called the board's decision to deny tuition a "capricious act" done without due consideration to all parties involved.

Argenbright argued that Keya Paha needs all the students it can get or faces losing accreditation. The district was on report last school year because of deficiencies in meeting accreditation standards. In addition, state records show that the population loss in the county the past 10 years has been over 20%.

Mrs. McCormick said that she'd never want to "force anyone's kids" to attend the school, but echoed the sentiment that Springview needs all the students it can get.

In an unprecedented move, the board discussed the matter in executive session at the close of regular business Friday afternoon. Board President R. Jerry Hargitt of Omaha said only that "the matter is under advisement."

2: Uncertified Teacher Cases Appealed By School Districts

Two school districts which had state funds withheld because uncertified teachers were on their staffs have appealed the action to the State Board of Education.

State law imposes a penalty upon school districts which violate the statute that only certified teachers be hired. Gretna Public School District 37 and the York School District both violated the law and suffered the penalty, according to State Department of Education.

The Gretna infraction occurred during the 1973-74 school year and the York during the 1974-75 school year, but both had penalties levied based on the 1975-76 school allotments, according to Lincoln attorney Norm Kirvosha, representing Krivosha told the board the Gretna case involved a first-year teacher, a graduate of Midland College in Fremont, who was hired to teach before she graduated. Prior to starting her teaching career she filled out the necessary certification forms and sent them with an $8 check to the state, he explained.

The woman was in the process of getting a divorce, her husband closed the bank account and the check bounced, he continued. By law, the county school superintendent is supposed to notify the school district, by certified letter, that a non-certified person is teaching within 60 days after the matter is discovered, he added. Gretna Supt. Lee Cull said he received a telephone call on the matter the following year. He said he knew the teacher personally and that she immediately sought the proper certification which was granted. At no time was the school advised that funds would be withheld, he said.

The York case, according to testimony from Krivosha and Supt. Paul Toms, involved the hiring of a University of Nebraska senior whose husband was already a York teacher. Again, the led the school was notified by a phone call, not a letter, and several months after the teacher had been employed.

The teacher, Toms said, told him she had left her certificate in Omaha during the summer and would get it sent in. Another call several months later on the same matter, and a call to the State Department of Education revealed the fact that the teacher was not certified, a fact she finally admitted, saying that she hadn't graduated because of several incomplete classes. She was issued an emergency certification and completed the year.

Krivosha noted that the wording of the law lays the burden of responsibility on the county superintendent and not the school and asked that the funds withheld be restored.

The state board voted to go into executive session to discuss the matter, and excluded the press, a situation which, according to several department veterans, hasn't happened in 10 to 15

Following the session, board President R. Jerry Hargitt, released a statement which said the final decision will be rendered at a later date.

Restraining Order Issued

Omaha (UPI) — Douglas County District Judge John Clark has ed a temporary restraining order against an Omaha city charter provision prohibiting city employes from seeking elective office. The suit was filed by state Sen. Bernice Labedz of Omaha, who is executive secretary for Mayor Edward Zorinsky. Mrs. Labedz, who earns $13,125 annually, contends the city charter provision is unconstitutional because it infringes upon her right to seek public office. Upon issuing the order, Clark set a Sept. 3 hearing on the suit. Mrs. Labedz was appointed by Gov. J. James Exon recently to fill the 5th Legislative District vacancy left by Sen. Eugene Mahoney.

Lauded Trucker

Thomas J. McWilliams, a contract driver with Crete Carrier Corp. of Lincoln, was awarded Thursday the Nebraska Motor Carriers Association "Driver of the Month" award.

He received the award-for his rescue of a fellow trucker who was pinned in an overturned tractor-trailer rig in a river near Belleville, Ill., on June 2.

Telling of his work to save the trapped man, McWilliams of Ripley, Tenn., said he pounded on the submerged cab and got a weak response from inside.

People on the bank threw him a steel fence post which he gouged in the cab's roof to let in air. He and three other men used an ax to chop long gashes in the roof, peeled back the metal and pulled out the driver, who escaped serious injury.

The Driver of the Month awards are given to drivers who have a good driving record after several years or perform meritorious acts. Winners of the monthly awards become nominees for the Driver of the Year award.

Lincoln police uncovered 15 watches and a handgun Wednesay night which authorities believe further link Wesley Peery to the murder of a Havelock coin dealer last County Atty. Ron Lahners announced Friday that the jewelry and handgun were found in a storage room in the boiler plant building at Nebraska Wesleyan University. Peery was a maintenance worker at Wesleyan.

He was convicted April 30 of murdering Mariane Mitzner during a robbery at the coin shop on June 6, 1975. A three-judge nanel has sentenced Peery to death for the slaying.

Lahners said the .22-caliber pistol bears the same serial number as one sold to Mary Blazek, Peery's woman friend.

Blazek testified that the gun disappeared.

Comparison of bullets fired from the handgun with bullet fragments taken from Mrs. Mitzner's body "determined to_ my satisfaction that it came from the same gun," Lahners

Police uncovered the items after receiving information from person Lahners would only describe as an "informant." He refused to elaborate.

However, authorities said the information was "acquired" from someone, indicating that the information wasn't intentionally reported to police.

Lahners said he wasn't surprised that the materials were not found earlier because of the extensive area to be searched.

He said the Nebraska Crime Laboratory will check the items for fingerprints.

Livestock Trade Dull

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)-Friday trade was dull on the Omaha livestock market.

The day's hog receipts were estimated at about 3,000 head. Barrows and gilts saw active trade, trending 25-cents, instances 50-cents higher.

Sows turned 50-cents lower, instances 75-cents off on tickets marked generally from $38.50-$39 00, few at $38.25. The cattle run was estimated at about 2.000 head, but there weren't enough sales in any one slaughter class to establish a market. The bulk of the receipts were feeders in for Friday's auction, while most of the slaughter cow supply was carried over for later trade. Sheep were nominal.

Displaced Homemaker Legislation Explained

QUESTION: I am 52 and just emphasized being divorced. I read with . The part of the bill that shows puzzled interest your recent article answering the 47-year-old read nor heard anything about it. Will you please give more infor-

ANSWER: The California law has or would have difficulty fincome; or has depended on government assistance as the parent of dependent children but

The reason why you may not have heard much about this new law is that it provides for a multipurpose service center for displaced homemakers to be set up in Alameda County, and you live in Los Angeles. The center will evaluate, counsel, train, and educate displaced homemakers for gainful employment.

To the maximum possible the center will be staffed by displaced homemakers who have the requisite skills. Peer job developing job readiness will be the greatest promise is the jobtraining programs which it envisions. These programs in-

1. Lay advocates. Displaced homemakers will be trained in the skills needed to become counselors and advisers of social service agencies like senior centers and legal aid offices, where their clients will be seeking help in dealing with the bureaucracy through such government programs as Social Security, welfare and unemploy-

2. Home health technicians. Displaced homemakers will learn skills in nutrition, basic health care and nursing, enabling them to work for the elderly and disabled who are housebound and unable to care for themselves and their households without assistance.

This ties in with the growing concern among social workers to keep elderly and disabled persons at home as much as possible instead of committing them to institutions when what they need is part-time care, such as that offered by this program.

3. Health care counselors. Displaced homemakers, especially those in mid-life will learn skills in counseling and basic health care that will prepare them for jobs in community and hospital out-patient health clinics.

'Band On The Run' Is Going To Russia London (AP) - Former

Beatle Paul McCartney's bestselling album "Band on the Run" is to be released by the Soviet state record company, Melodiya.

EMI (Electrical and Musical Instruments) Records, which made the announcement, said release is planned for later this year as part of a gradual development in relations between EMI and the Soviet recording company.

The album by McCartney and his group, Wings, was issued in Britain in January, 1974, and still is a top international hit.

"How come it takes ten days for a personal letter to be delivered when a BILL arrives the day after it's mailed?"

"You mean they flew halfway across the country to do THAT!"

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Seward Merchants, a new team this year, won the championship of the Al Hawthorne AAA slow pitch softball league with an 8-0 win over Pershing Cafe Friday at Elks Field, putting together a threegame comeback.

Pershing won the first two games of the best-of-five series on Wednesday, but Seward bounced back Thursday with a pair of wins and gained momentum for the championship game.

In the all-star game which followed the title game, the Western All-Stars blasted the Eastern All-Stars, 18-7. Seward was the Western division titlist and Pershing won the Eastern division.

Seward jumped to a 2-0 lead in the top of the first when Mark Weber, who singled, scored on a single and an error. Bob Munson then sacrificed to score Steve Carr.

"We jumped to an early lead like we did most of the season," said Seward coach Neil Schulz. "All year we'd score early and then kind of let up. Sometimes you get beat when you do that.

"But tonight, we just didn't let up. We played good solid defense and didn't make mistakes," Schulz said. "We just played a good game, which we haven't been going up until last night and tonight."

Seward was paced by Brian Dittman, who went two for three and knocked in two hits for Seward. But it was Pershing mistakes that made the differfence.

"I think we played loose last night (Thursday) and we got caught," he said. "But tonight if anything, we were a little tight. We just didn't have it. Things really turned when they picked up those four runs. At 2-0, all you need is a couple of hits and some running and you're back in it. But at 6-0 with just two innings to play, Tonniges was just throwing too well to let us back in the game." Jeff Schultz nearly had an inside-the-park home run in the four-run inning, but Dittman, who was on base, wasn't able to get a good jump on the hit. Schultz had to settle for a triple and a run batted in. Sam Martin went the distance for Pershing, giving up 10 hits, striking out one

The night before Busch's speech, NL owners named a sixmember committee to look into problems facing the league, one of which was said to be the status of Feeney, who took the position in 1970 after 24 years as

Longshot Morgan Leading PGA By Four

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Longshot Dr. Gil Morgan, a nonpracticing optometrist and the son of a tombstone dealer, shrugged off muggy heat and growing pressure with a solid, two-under-par 68 that staked him to a four-stroke lead Friday halfway through the 58th PGA national championship.

"I've played pretty good golf—for me," said the 29-year-old Morgan, a Wewoka, Okla. product who required two tries to gain his tour playing rights. He has yet to win a title and gained exempt status last season only with a strong performance in the last tournament of the year.

He put together a 36 hole total of 134, six shots under par for two trips over the hilly, 7,054yard Congressional Country Club course, a playground of pen. presidents in suburban Washington, D. C.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals President August A. Busch Jr., imploring fellow National League owners that "the time has come for a fresh start," has urged them to fire NL President Charles Feeney and John A. Gaherin, the major league's chief labor negotiators.

"We have been kicked from pillar to post. We have received and accepted incompetent leadership and the results are obvious," Busch told a closeddoor gathering of NL owners Thursday during the annual in Phoenix, Ariz.

A five-page text of the angry presentation by the 77-year-old Busch was released here.

There was no immediate public response by the owners to Busch's remarks, although Com-missioner Bowle Kuhn did say nothing was brought up regarding Feeney during a later joint session of owners from both leagues Thursday night.

Regarding Feeney, Kuhn told newsmen, "He's a fine man and a fine league president."

The night before Busch's speech, NL owners named a sixmember committee to look into problems facing the league, one of which was said to be the status of Feeney, who took the position in 1970 after 24 years as a vice president in the San Francisco organization. Busch's remarks apparently were prompted by the handling

Foreman Ready For Two Battles

George Foreman

George Foreman goes into his nationally-televised fight Saturday afternoon against Scott LeDoux with the possibility of legal action hanging over his head.

Foreman says he is looking at the fight as a prelude to a title match and an opportunity to regain the world heavyweight championship he lost two years ago in Zaire to Muhammad Ali.

Foreman was served with a civil summons stemming from an attempt by the law offices of one-time Democratic vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver to collect legal fees the law firm claims are owed by Foreman.

Football

Eddie McMillan and Ken Geddes, two starters last year for Los Angeles, will be on the opposite side of the line Saturday night when their new teammates, the Seattle Seahawks, meet the Rams in an exhibition game in the Kingdome. Geddes, a former Nebraska standout, joins another former Husker, Bill Olds, on the Seahawks.

Ohio State University coach Woody Hayes received an endorsement from one of his most famous pupils — two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin. Griffin said he didn't believe reports that Hayes was involved in recruiting irregularities.

The Morgan State and Grambling football teams will travel to Tokyo next month as guests of the Japanese government to play their regular season game Sept. 25.

A group led by a real estate developer has offered to buy the National League's Houston Astros, but officials of the club ownership said quick agreement is unlikely.

The American League won a partial victory when Commissioner Bowie Kuhn voted to use the designated hitter in the World Series in alternating years. Kuhn named a committee to work out a uniform approach to the regular season. The owners also agreed to pay any indemnifications that Kuhn and members of the executive council might incur from Charlie Finley's $3.5 million suit. A formula was also adopted to allowing performance bonuses, previously prohibited.

The Boston Red Sox sent 21-year-old pitcher Rick Jones back to the minor leagues to "get his head straight" a team spokesman said. Jones, who has a 4-1 record and a 2.84 earned run average, the best among Red Sox starters was scheduled to pitch Friday night. Reggie Cleveland replaced him.

Other Sports

An East German women's relay team set a new world record in the 800-meter relay with a time of 1:32.40, breaking the old mark set by an Australian quartet.

Top-Seeded Jimmy Connors overcame three-set points against him in the first set and rallied for a 7-5, 6-3 victory over Karl Meller to reach the quarterfinals of the $157,000 National Clay Court Tennis championships. Defending champion Manuel Orantes, Eddie Dibbs and Brian Gottfried also won their way into the quarterfinals in the Indianapolis tournament, joining Guillermo Vilas.

Barclay Plager, who resigned as the St. Louis Blues captain in midseason because he was upset with his own play, was named player-coach of the Blue's Kansas City farm team.

John Walker, New Zealand's Olympic 1,500 meters gold medalist, said that he has rejected a $250,000 offer to turn professional and join the ITA. Walker said that other New Zealand Olympic stars Rod Dixon and Dick Guax also have rejected pro

World champion driver Niki Lauda, badly hurt in a flaming crash Aug. 1, was reported doing well after his first skin graft

Practices Open

By United Press International The Nebraska School Activities Association announced today first practices in fall high school sports may start Monday. Fall sports include football, volleyball, boys gymnastics, girls golf, girls swimming, cross country and boys tennis.

The Association said the first two days of football must be free of contact with pads not permitted until the third day.

The Association also said starting Monday, any high school athlete intending to compete in any fall sport must not compete in that sport in any way on a team or against any individual not a part of a high school program.

That would include golf competition in tournaments or leagues for girls at clubs or courses, tennis tournaments for boys and swimming meets for girls.

Outside competition on or after Monday will make an athlete ineligible for the high school season.

The Association said the only exceptions would be for national or international competition for which athletes had qualified prior to Sunday.

Staubach, who had praised Longley as a great quarterback Tuesday, called him "gutless" and "an outright liar" after the Thursday incident.

Longley gave this version of the dressing room scene: "He leaned over, got his pads and pushed a chair in my direction. I had a second to think and I swung. It (a fight) would have happened again. There was bad blood between us . . . I knocked him cold . . . If he didn't think he got a fair deal, I'll meet in Madison Square Garden for three rounds."

Staubach retorted: "He is looking for a way to justify being gutless ... He hit me when I wasn't looking. I was putting my shoulder pads on. He did not say anything. He hit me and I kind of turned my head and hit it on the scale ... Push chairs at him? . . He is an outright liar."

The feud between Staubach and Longley apparently had been simmering for some time. Longley, who replaced Craig Morton as the Cowboys' No. 2 quarterback after Morton was traded to the New York Giants, has played in Staubach's shadow. His best performance was a last-minute desperation pass on Thanksgiving Day, 1974, against Washington.

Pershing Transferred To College

The 70-acre Pershing College campus in Beatrice is now an official part of the Southeast Nebraska Community Technical College and classes will probably begin in October.

The official transfer from the University of Nebraska Foundation to the SeTech Foundation took place Friday morning, said Dr. Robert Eicher, SeTech area president.

The Pershing campus, closed for more than four years, will reopen with classes in October, Dr. Eicher has said. Clean-up and repair operations will begin next week and class planning is already underway.

The Friday morning transfer Church, 4140 No. 60th. Lincoln ended a month of discussion and Memorial Park. Memorials to vote taking by the two foun-dations involved. Roper & Sons Mor-tuary, 6037 Havelock Ave. tag was reimbursement of about $50,000 that the NU Foundation Palibearers: Warren Moser, Jerry Sievers, Oakley Obermeyer, Kenneth Anderhas spent on maintenance, said Doug Curry, attorney for son, Larry Teselle, Dick Car-SeTech.

The final step in the transfer is a lease agreement between the SeTech Foundation and the SeTech Board for the school's use of the two classrooms and one dormitory on the campus.

HARDUNG -

The 10-year lease agreement will call for an annual rent, enough to cover the foundation's load costs plus a little extra, said Curry.

Two additional dorms could be used later by the school or leased to other groups, he said.

Earlier this summer the SeTech board appropriated $150,000 for operations at the Pershing campus as an auxillary of the Fairbury campus

Longley's Future Muddled DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys returned to Texas Friday, but the whereabouts of reserve quarterback Clint Longley were unknown.

Longley and first-string signal-caller Roger Staubach had their second fist fight of the week Thursday, resulting in a cut over Staubach's eye and the departure of Longley from the training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Staubach said Thursday's fight was a one punch affair and that Longley knocked him into a scale, opening a cut that required nine stitches.

It was first thought that Longley had returned to his townhouse at a resort near Dallas. But the manager of the complex said he hadn't seen Longley for six or seven weeks.

"All I've got to say to the Cowboys is 'play me or trade me'," Longley said as he left camp. He was unavailable for comment Friday.

Cowboy officials said they would try to oblige Longley by trading him. He was immediately suspended "without pay tween us," said Longley, a thirdyear veteran out of Abilene Christian College, following the dressing room incident. Tuesday, the Longley and

There's a fabulous choice of automobile makes, models, options, features and prices

And car buyers are shopping around as never before. The Newspaper Advertising Bureau has a 1976 study of nearly 1,000 men who bought a car new in the past three years. More than half of them said they will not buy the same kind of car next time. Partly this reflects a natural desire to upgrade. Partly it is because of changing economics. Partly it results from the rise of the personal car and the multi-car household. so the next car bought may not be a direct replacement for the last car bought.

In a volatile market, prospective new car buyers need plenty of hard, factual information to buy intelligently.

Daily newspapers have always been the automotive marketplace, the first step toward the showroom. Today's automobile ads are more factual and useful than ever before, and in the 1976 Bureau survey, 76% of the men had read a newspaper "yesterday."

If you're shopping for a new car the place to do it is in the pages of the daily newspaper, even before you visit a showroom.

And if you're selling automobiles, the best way to reach prospects with useful, factual information about your product is through daily newspapers—the information medium.

Fall Sports Practices Open

By United Press International The Nebraska School Activities Association announced today first practices in fall high school sports may start Monday. Fall sports include football, volleyball, boys gymnastics, girls golf, girls swimming, cross country and boys tennis.

The Association said the first two days of football must be free of contact with pads not permitted until the third day.

The Association also said starting Monday, any high school athlete intending to compete in any fall sport must not compete in that sport in any way on a team or against any individual not a part of a high school program.

That would include golf competition in tournaments or leagues for girls at clubs or courses, tennis tournaments for boys and swimming meets for girls.

Outside competition on or after Monday will make an athlete ineligible for the high school season.

The Association said the only exceptions would be for national or international competition for which athletes had qualified prior to Sunday.

The feud between Staubach and Longley apparently had been simmering for some time. Pershing To College

The 70-acre Pershing College campus in Beatrice is now an official part of the Southeast Nebraska Community Technical College and classes will probably begin in October.

The official transfer from the University of Nebraska Foundation to the SeTech Foundation took place Friday morning, said Dr. Robert Eicher, SeTech area president.

The Pershing campus, closed for more than four years, will reopen with classes in October, Dr. Eicher has said. Clean-up and repair operations will begin next week and class planning is already underway.

The Friday morning transfer ended a month of discussion and vote taking by the two foun-dations involved. The only price tag was reimbursement of about $50,000 that the NU Foundation has spent on maintenance, said Doug Curry, attorney for SeTech. The final step in the transfer is a lease agreement between the SeTech Foundation and the SeTech Board for the school's use of the two classrooms and one dormitory on the campus.

The 10-year lease agreement will call for an annual rent, enough to cover the foundation's load costs plus a little extra, said Curry.

Two additional dorms could be used later by the school or leased to other groups, he said. Earlier this summer the SeTech board appropriated $150,000 for operations at the Pershing campus as an auxillary of the Fairbury campus half of them said they will not buy the same kind of car next time.

YOUR MOVE

There's a fabulous choice of automobile makes, models, options, features and prices

And car buyers are shopping around as never before.

Partly this reflects a natural desire to upgrade. Partly it is because of changing economics. Partly it results from the rise of the personal car and the multi-car household, so the next car bought may not be a direct replacement for the last car bought.

The Newspaper Advertising Bureau has a 1976 study of nearly 1,000 men who bought a car new in the past three years. More than In a volatile market, prospective new car buyers need plenty of hard, factual information to buy intelligently. Daily newspapers have always been the automotive marketplace, the first step toward the showroom. Today's automobile ads are more factual and useful than ever before, and in the 1976 Bureau survey, 76% of the men had read a newspaper "yesterday." If you're shopping for a new car the place to do it is in the pages of the daily newspaper, even before you visit a showroom.

And if you're selling automobiles, the best way to reach prospects with useful, factual information about your product is through daily newspapers—the information medium.
